

Charles Rohlfing named superintendent at Dissen & Juhn Company- Stevensville, MD

Charles Rohlfing of Baltimore has joined the staff at the Dissen & Juhn Company, Stevensville, Md., as superintendent. His responsibilities include supervising construction activities across multiple projects, including scheduling, field purchasing, quality control, safety, and subcontractor coordination.

Rohlfing has more than 15 years experience managing teams of tradesmen in dry land and underwater construction. He previously served as superintendent at Specialty Underwater Services with offices in Baltimore and Pittsburgh, where he led an underwater construction team for the Chaleroi Locks and Dam project on the Monongahela River in Pittsburgh. Rohlfing was also superintendent at PreCon Marine Construction Inc., Chesapeake, Va., and Marine Solutions LLC, Norfolk, Va., as well as supervisor at Glenn Underwater Services, Inc., Charlotte, N.C.

Dissen & Juhn Company has been serving the needs of waterfront property owners for 44 years, completing more than 1,000 marine construction projects for public and private sector clients, including marina owner-operators, counties and towns, as well as the U.S. Navy, the U.S. Army and the U.S. Coast Guard. The firm serves the Chesapeake and Delaware Bays, the Potomac River, and northern Virginia.

In addition to providing dredging and pile driving services, Dissen & Juhn has extensive experience in the design and construction of timber vehicular and pedestrian bridges and boardwalks, fixed and floating docks, breakwaters, living shorelines, bulkheads and stone revetments, boat ramps, and a variety of other marine structures.
